The Trend extractor comes with a complete set of tools

This one is a nice quality machine, just the thing you'd expect from Trend but, not surprisingly, it's really been designed with a router in mind. The extractor hose was the smallest on test at 36mm and, while this is great for smaller power tools, it did struggle a bit when hooked up to the thickener. It comes with a very long lead and the longest hose of the lot, making it a candidate for the 'most spider webs on a moveable piece of kit in the workshop' award. For me though, the best feature has to be the power take-off socket which means the vacuum will start up and stop automatically whenever your machine or power tool is running. Also comes with a full set of vacuum tools, including a head for use on wet floors.
